A High Performance Building is defined in 11-2-203.1 of the Baltimore County Code as a commercial building that achieves at least a Silver rating according to the U.S. Green Building Council's LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) Green Building rating system or the American National Standards Institute NGBS (National Green Building Standards) rating system.

Buildings using the LEED rating system are divided into three stages of building development. Please indicate accordingly:

New Construction (NC) ____ Core and Shell (CS) ____ Existing Building (EB) ____

The NGBS rating system is available for new construction only.

Applicants must submit documentation from a professional LEED or NGBS Rater which certifies the rating level achieved in the structure. Failure to submit such documentation will result in denial of the application.

I hereby make oath or affirm, under the penalties of perjury, that the contents of this application, including any attachments hereto, are true and correct to the best of my knowledge, information and belief.
